The Electricity Authority will publish all submissions it receives (including submitters' names, but with contact details removed). If you do NOT want parts of your submission published, specify which parts and why here. Note they may still have to publish these parts if they receive a request under the Official Information Act.

Questions

1. What barriers have you experienced when comparing electricity companies? What would make it easier for you to compare and switch?

my flat mate actually organised finding the correct company. I was too busy with unit work to invest time into properly looking Something that would make it easier if there was perhaps a bundle pack/quiz thats.

To support an existing or new, externally run, website(s).

To require retailers to provide their existing consumers with best plan information. would assess their needs and advir or promotional activity and campaigns for comparison and switching services. The best plan /company to go with.

Do you support their approach?

Yes! Only concern is that people might get annoyed with community advisers if they think that it's telemarketers which it's not.

would people 4 know to go to

3. Do you think it's important for the Authority to fund and support a comparison and switching website? Why?

If there is one place which people can go - then that website is probably a good thing as it would provide clear instruction and direction which is what people want

4. What problems, if any, do you see with current comparison and switching websites, such as Powerswitch?

- 5. Do you support the proposal that companies must regularly tell customers which plan would be best for them? How often should they do this?

 Yes-every time. It Joesn't have to be in Person, in fact it's probabley better if it's something like an online questionnaire something which people can do in their own time without getting confused. House something illiteracy must be
- Can do in their own time without getting confused; though people's illiteracy might be a 6. What do you think about the idea of requiring companies to automatically switch customers to the best plan? (The customers could barrier there then switch back to the old plan if they preferred.)

 I think that this is a good idea though would presumably require quite heavy resourcing for the Electricity Companies to individually assign and plan for each user but who knows?
- 7. Do you think companies should be required to include standard information on power bills, so customers can compare easily?

 Yes. And potentially a form to set up auto-payments?
- 8. How else could the Electricity Authority support people to compare and switch power plans?

 When someone is obviously paying too much for a plan or too little then making it a priority to contact that user to advise them to change though obviously that would require access to records
